

Abergavenny will soon be in the picture with new CCTV

November 12, 2021

Work has begun installing brand new CCTV and customer information screens at Abergavenny station.

The project is being overseen by Transport for Wales (TfW), and will carry on at the Grade II listed building until February.

The CCTV system, carried out by Gee Communications Ltd, will cover the entirety of the station for the first time, including car parks. The information screens, funded by Network Rail, will be accessible at both platforms waiting rooms and the booking office, and deliver real-time arrival and departure information.

Stations director for TfW, Andrew Moore, said: “We work closely with our customers and stakeholders and we know that not only do they want stations that are welcoming and appealing, but they also want stations that are safe and secure.

“CCTV will act as both a deterrent and helpful resource when needed and the new Customer Information Screens will be available 24/7 with right up to date customer travel information. Both additions will be a real benefit to the station and its customers.

“This investment at Abergavenny station is an important one that will help achieve this aim as part of our multi-million pound Station Improvement Vision where, over a number of years, we will invest to enhance stations across the Wales and borders network.”
