

Aslef strike to bring fresh disruption on 26 November

November 18, 2022

Passengers are being advised to brace themselves for more chaos, as a 24-hour strike by drivers at eleven operates on the 26 November is set to have knock-on effects for services across the board.

The walkout will affect the following train operators: Avanti West Coast; Chiltern Railways; CrossCountry; East Midlands Railway; Great Western Railway; Greater Anglia; London North Eastern Railway; Northern Trains; Southeastern; Transpennine Express, and West Midlands Trains.

Passengers traveling to England v South Africa at Twickenham and to Cardiff for the Autumn International match Wales v Australia on Saturday 26 November are advised to check with their train operator for travel updates as many trains across the network will be affected.

Services on the morning of Sunday 27 November are also likely to be impacted, and passengers are being urged to aim to start their journey later than usual, to avoid any hiccups in the system as workers return.

Daniel Mann, director of industry operations at the Rail Delivery Group, said: "The strike by Aslef brings more uncertainty for passengers and businesses by disrupting their weekend plans.

“While we will do all that we can to minimise disruption, if you are going to travel on the routes affected, please plan ahead and check the latest travel advice on national rail enquiries. Passengers with advance, off-peak or anytime tickets affected by the strike can use their ticket either on the day before the date on the ticket, or up to and including Tuesday 29 November. Passengers can also change their tickets to travel on an alternate date or get a refund if their train is cancelled or rescheduled.”
