December 15, 2020

Faithful+Gould, a member of the SNC-Lavalin Group, has added to its senior team in the North as it looks to increase its footprint in the transportation sector.

Rob Whitham joins Faithful+Gould as Regional Director from Turner and Townsend to help drive growth in the North West transportation sector. Rob will be focused on bringing his industry wide transport experience to key clients in the North, including his extensive work with Transport for Greater Manchester (TfGM), Highways England and Network Rail.

Rob's appointment follows a number of other key transportation appointments for Faithful+Gould in the region including Lee Askew, Huw Oeppen, Richard Shore and Phil Lynch.

Mike Odling, Director of Transportation in the North at Faithful+Gould, said: "We are strengthening our transportation team to focus on clients across the North and ensure that we can address their needs by providing exceptional people with a breadth of experience. Our focus on this region and sector will continue in 2021 as we further bolster our teams and deliver the transformational transportation projects the North needs."

Faithful+Gould has a long history in the North, with a portfolio of transportation projects across the region including Rail Systems Integration Partner for Network Rail's East Coast Digital Programme, Transport for Greater Manchester's Interchange programme and Highways England.
