

Greater Anglia announces that Brandon station eastbound platform has re-opened

April 3, 2023

Trains are able to call at the eastbound platform at Brandon again after it was closed for safety reasons.

All trains scheduled to stop at the station started calling there again from the start of service on Sunday morning (April 2nd).

The eastbound platform had been closed since 1 March after a safety inspection assessed the disused, old station building as potentially at risk of collapse. A bus replacement service was then put in place while the platform was closed.

Works to enable safe public access to the platform have now been completed and customers can use the eastbound platform and the station footbridge from Sunday 2 April onwards.

Greater Anglia said: "We would like to thank customers for their patience while the work was carried out."
