

HARTING honoured with the 'Best of Industry Award' for its Han-Modular® Domino Modules

January 24, 2023

The HARTING Technology Group has been named the winner in the 'Electrical Equipment' category with its Han-Modular® Domino modules at the Vogel Communications Group Best of Industry Awards.

This next stage in the development of industrial connectivity had already made a name for itself following its world debut in the spring, convincing the HERMES Award jury, who acknowledged it as one of the top three innovations of the year 2022. The Domino range also won the 'Cable and Connector Product of the Year' at the first 'Instrumentation Excellence Awards' in London in October.

Since 2016, Maschinen Markt (Vogel Communications Group) has annually acknowledged the best new solutions in industry. The nomination phase is followed by five months of online voting, during which around 20,000 readers of the publishing magazine MM Maschinenmarkt vote for their respective favourites. This year, for the first time, the award was presented in cooperation with other brands (PROCESS, LABORPRAXIS and DeviceMed) of the Vogel Communications Group – thereby representing an even broader section of industry.

Norbert Gemmeke, Managing Director of the Global Business Unit Electric, is delighted to have won the award: “We are very proud of this award and would like to thank the readers who cast their votes for us. This award shows that we are right on track with our customers and partners when it comes to the advantages of the Domino modules. Saving installation space and weight, as well as the associated lower costs and the conservation of resources, feature as vital trend topics that concern us all in this day and age.”

Photo credit: HARTING