

New Director of Infrastructure, Enterprise and Growth joins the IPA

July 30, 2020

Infrastructure and Projects Authority (IPA) appoints Jon Loveday as new Director of Infrastructure, Enterprise and Growth.

Jon will start his role from early August, leading the team which lies at the heart of the government's ambitious infrastructure agenda to level up and decarbonise the economy. The IPA supports the delivery of government's major projects by helping to set them up for success and building delivery capability in departments with projects on the Government Major Projects Portfolio \(GMPP\).

With over 30 years experience in the infrastructure sector, Jon will now oversee the continuously evolving portfolio of the government's most complex and high risk infrastructure projects. Jon has pioneered award winning collaborative models across complex global supply chains in water, telecoms and energy. Most recently Jon held the role of Chief Commercial Officer for the Clancy Group.

As Director he will engage on the likes of HS2, Northern Powerhouse Rail, and the construction of new nuclear & nuclear decommissioning programme.

Nick Smallwood, IPA Chief Executive and Head of the Project Delivery Function, said: “We must consistently deliver our major projects successfully to help rebuild our economy and transform our infrastructure.

“I’m pleased to welcome Jon to the IPA, who brings with him a wealth of experience from the infrastructure sector. I’m sure Jon will play a major role as we move forward supporting the government’s ambitious agenda.”

Jon Loveday, IPA Director of Infrastructure, Enterprise and Growth, said: “I am delighted to be joining the IPA at such an important time. Our ability to deliver world leading infrastructure is at the heart of the UK government’s planned infrastructure revolution and we have a lead role to play in kick starting the economy.”

Photo credit: Infrastructure and Projects Authority

For today’s rail news from railbusinessdaily.com click here.