

Railway industry urges Government to put rail at the heart of Coronavirus recovery

March 2, 2021

Ahead of the Budget tomorrow, Wednesday 3 March, the Railway Industry Association (RIA) has called on the Government to put rail at the heart of the UK's recovery from Coronavirus.

RIA, the national trade body for UK rail suppliers, has three main recommendations for the Chancellor, which include:

1. Recognise the importance of rail in the long term in providing economic growth and jobs across the UK, as well as in building a sustainable transport system for the future;
2. Publish the Rail Network Enhancements Pipeline - the list of planned rail upgrades - in order to give rail business visibility of future work. On the day of the Budget, it will be 500 days since the Pipeline was last published; and
3. Stand by commitments to deliver major upgrades and publish long-term industry plans, including the publication of both the Integrated Rail Plan and Transport Decarbonisation Plan.

Darren Caplan, Chief Executive of the Railway Industry Association (RIA), said: "The Government has given welcome support to UK rail over the last 12 months, enabling people – including key workers – and goods to move around the country during lockdowns and restrictions, as well as supported railway industry jobs and investment. As we approach the Budget, and the country looks to recover from Coronavirus, the Railway Industry Association and our members urge the Government to put rail at the heart of the recovery going forward with three key priorities.

“First, we urge the Government to recognise the importance of rail long-term and the need for investment certainty for the sector. There is a strong record of passenger numbers bouncing back following pandemics, recessions and various crises, and so, given the long-term nature of rail investment, the Treasury shouldn’t take its foot off the pedal at the very time the DfT it is seeking to accelerate transport infrastructure schemes.

“Second, Budget Day marks exactly 500 days since the Rail Network Enhancement Projects – the list of planned rail upgrades – was last updated by the DfT. Rail suppliers are calling for urgent publication of the list, in order to give them visibility to plan for work.

“Finally, we would like to see the Government continue to stand by commitments to deliver funding for major rail projects up and down the country, whether the full HS2 network, Northern Powerhouse Rail, Midlands Rail Hub, East West Rail, or the two Crossrail schemes, as well as bringing forward urgent digital signalling and decarbonisation work.

“Delivering on these three priorities will not only support jobs and investment in the railway industry, but also benefit the UK more widely, boosting thousands of jobs and billions of pounds of GVA elsewhere in the economy, as the Government seeks to build back better out of Coronavirus in the months and years ahead.”
