

Skanska UK appoints head of occupational health and wellbeing

October 10, 2022

Megan Taylor has joined Skanska UK as head of occupational health and wellbeing. She joins from British Transport Police where she was Deputy Director of Safety, Health and Wellbeing.

She has previously held senior health and wellbeing roles at Network Rail, LNER, Virgin Trains and Southern Railways.

“Skanska UK enjoys an enviable reputation in health and wellbeing,” says Megan. “Particularly for its innovative work addressing the issue of mental health in the construction industry. I’m delighted to be joining the business at this exciting stage in its development.”

Dylan Roberts, director of health, safety, wellbeing and quality, said: “Megan fully supports our focus on mental health and comes with many fresh insights and approaches on how we can further improve our knowledge and performance in the fields of occupational health and wellbeing.”

Photo credit: Skanska UK