

The latest RailDirector is online and free to view

May 21, 2021

The rail industry is being urged to continue the fight for inclusivity.

That is the message from Shane Andrews MBE, the cover feature of the latest RailDirector – which has gone online.

Over 2,000 copies have already been sent to rail industry leaders and subscribers, but now thousands more can click here to read the magazine covering everything from track to train.

In this edition Network Rail's Shane Andrews MBE shares his experiences of increasing LGBT+ awareness and empowering colleagues to celebrate diversity in the workplace.

He said: "We've got a long way to go to be fully inclusive, but it is a fight we need to continue to make sure it happens," he said. "I am heartened to see some really, really positive examples of things that are happening – however it is not always a rosy picture."

Also featuring in May's edition are interviews with Transport for Wales first female Driver and Operations Trainer and Railway Mission chaplain Mike Roberts.

David McLoughlin, CEO of the Business Daily Group, said: "We're delighted that the latest magazine is now online. I've thoroughly enjoyed reading it and hope everyone else enjoys it.

"I would like to thank everyone who has contributed, from those who have taken the time to share their stories to the team, to the organisations which have used our magazine as a platform for success."

Christian Wiles, who leads the RBD Publications team, says: "We've been receiving some wonderful feedback from those who have received hard copies of the magazine so I hope those reading online will feel the same.

"Work is well underway on June's edition with some excellent features lined up and the space to showcase your organisation is filling up very quickly."
