

Transport for Wales rail ticket office

January 10, 2023

Transport for Wales is offering customers cheap rail tickets to encourage them to make the switch to sustainable travel this new year.

Customers can buy 12 journeys for the price of six on all Multiflex tickets, providing commuters and frequent users with a much cheaper way to travel.

For those looking to make more sustainable choices this year and help in the fight against climate change, taking up this offer, leaving the car at home and choosing public transport is a great way to start 2023.

Welcoming the news, Deputy Minister for Climate Change, with a responsibility for transport, Lee Waters said: "Today's announcement will make a real difference to individuals and families who are struggling to make ends meet as we face up to the cost-of-living crisis.

"As well as helping to put more money back into people's pockets, this move will also provide a boost to the rail industry and encourage more people to make the switch to more sustainable travel."

Alexia Course, Transport for Wales Chief Commercial Officer said: "We are very aware that the cost of living crisis is affecting everyone at present and we'd like to play our part in helping our customers where we can. We want to encourage more people to choose public transport and travel sustainably and this is one of our ways to encourage that.

“We’re proud to be offering a range of cheaper rail travel deals in January and hope this will help in financially difficult times.”
