

Wigan is the next destination for rail's favourite networking event – Rail Infrastructure Networking (RIN)

May 7, 2019

One of the industry's most popular free-to-attend networking events, Rail Infrastructure Networking (RIN), takes place on Thursday (9th May) at the DW Stadium in Wigan.

As well as being free to attend, RIN is free from sales pitches and presentations. You're also free to turn up and leave when you please, between 9.30am and 12.30pm. Even the refreshments are free!

Those who have registered to attend can look forward to an enjoyable and valuable half-day, meeting professionals from across a wide cross-section of the industry for what could be the start of some useful business relationships.

There's still time to register

If you haven't registered, there's still time. Just go to www.rinevents.co.uk/register and reserve your place in a couple of clicks. You'll be in good company, as RIN events often attract several hundreds of people from all over the country.

Showcase your company across the rail industry

Of course, the vital element in every good rail networking event is company exhibitors. Companies find RIN an inexpensive way to send their message far and wide across the industry, paying just £175 (no VAT).

In Wigan, there will be representation from companies in all parts of the rail industry. However, we do have room for a few more exhibitors. You will be provided with a table on which you can showcase your marketing material along with space to bring two pop-up banners for display. To book your space, just visit www.rinevents.co.uk/advertising

Thursday promises to be another great event and your company will be warmly welcomed in Wigan.
